BUSINESS GETS ATOMIC POWER BID

Yanks, Dodgers Set for Decisive Series Test

NEW YORK 8-5 FAVORITE TO WIN SEVENTH GAME

Garish Finale Anticipated In First $2,000,000 World Series In History

BULLETIN
Brooklyn's Dodgers got away to an early 2 run lead in the second inning of the final game of the World Series but the Yankees came back to score one run in their half of the second.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 — Jaded, effete New York suddenly was just a bigger and shoddier prairie junction on circus day as it awaited today the garish, lavish finale of the first $2,000,000 World Series in baseball history.

Another carnival crowd, approximating yesterday's record of 74,065, was ready to sit in on the seventh and deciding game between the New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers.

The eccentric, ragtag Dodger coterie unexpectedly and wondrously turned on the favored Yankees yesterday with an 8-6 victory that produced a three-all series deadlock.

UNDERDOG Brooklyn was being priced at a low 5-8 in the betting for today's showdown event, in spite of the fact that the American League Champions have definitely lost the service of the series hitting star, John Lindell.

Johnny was forced out of yesterday's 3-4-hour contest with a broken rib, and won't be back until next year. At the moment of departure, he was hitting exactly .500, with nine hits in 18 times up, including three doubles, a triple and 7 runs batted in.

The singular Mr. "Yogi" Berra will trundle his eccentric torso out to right field for the afternoon, taking Lindell's No. 3 spot in the batting order. Meanwhile, Tommy Henrich was to shift from right to left field where he was to assume the injured man's fielding chores.

The Yanks were held at 8-5 on the Broadway blocks, doubtless because they were coming back by Floyd Bevens, their 8 2-3-inning hitless genius of Friday's pitching mound against the Dodgers' Hal Gregg. Yesterday he had Allie Reynolds, their home-ground specialist, ready to put the bowser on the Brooklyn and close out the account for 1947. He had won 13 out of 15 stadium games during the season. He had won the second game of the series there.

BUT YESTERDAY he couldn't beat a rug with a broom-handle. And, thanks to a fabulous character named Al Gionfriddo and his 415-foot catch, the Yanks never fully recovered.

For a breathless, historic few moments in the sixth inning yesterday, the end seemed perilously near for the Brooklyn.

They had gone over Reynolds like an estimate to take a 4-0 lead, only to see the Yanks tie it with a six-hit attack on Vic Lombardi in the third inning and go ahead at 5-4 in the fourth on singles by Rizzuto, Henrich and Lindell. The Brooklyn rebuttal was a five-hit rally for four runs in the top of the sixth against Page and Newsum.

Trailing by 8-3, the Yanks got in their half and brought up Joe DiMaggio to face the tottering Joe Hatten with two out. Joe's essay was a booming smash far and high into deep left-center for what seemed a certain homer, tying the score.

But Gionfriddo, breaking fast, moved with incredible speed to outrun the ball, reach the 415-foot exit gate a split-second ahead of it and then reach into the runway area for a gloved-hand catch they'll be talking about in their dotage.

U. S.-Soviet Fight Blocks Every Possible Road To Speedy Agreements

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Oct. 6—The United Nations general assembly today faced a crucial fourth week as the unrelenting battle between Soviet Russia and the United States over major issues blocked every road to speedy agreements.

The thousand delegates are resuming the discussion in eight committees today with little hope of formulating recommendations either on Greece, Palestine, the veto or other disputed questions mutually satisfactory to either the East or West factions.

In the words of a leading delegate, the question no longer is one of finding agreement, but of measuring the width and depth of disagreements, particularly in the conflict between the big powers.

One of the critical situations widening the split between the

SLOT MACHINES AND BEER FOUND AT MORTUARY

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6—A Cincinnati funeral director was booked on charges of exhibiting gambling devices today and his wife was charged with selling beer without a permit.

Detectives said they seized two slot machines at the residence of Charles E. Meyer, 36, and were served beer by his wife, Phyllis, 38. They said that an "ex-servicemen's club" is operated on the premises.

ACQUITTAL ENDS TORRID ROMANCE OF BUD, LOUISE

Chubby Heiress Casts Off College Boy Sweetheart—Has New Heart Throb

SANTA ANA, Cal., Oct. 6—Beulah Louise Overell and George R. "Bud" Gollum, their torrid romance at an end, went their separate ways today following their acquittal on murder charges.

The chubby heiress cast off her husky college-boy lover mere moments after the jury found them innocent of murdering the girl's rich parents, the Walter E. Overells.

The break, suspected for some time, came out into the open when the girl, just freed, shot back a blunt "no" when asked whether she was going to marry Gollum.

Even in the jubilation of their shared victory, she completely ignored him. They didn't exchange a word after the verdict was returned and she refused a request by photographers to pose with him.

LATER, AT a party given for newsmen by her attorney, Otto A. Jacobs, the heiress disclosed that she had a new romance and asserted that she was "definitely through" with Gollum.

She refused to reveal the identity of her new heart interest, saying only that she knew him before "I was put in jail."

The verdict that freed the co-defendants was returned at 8:42

CIO CHIFTAIN ASKS RETURN OF PRICE CONTROLS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—Philip Murray, president of the CIO, called today for restoration of price controls and rationing as the only effective means of backing up President Truman's food conservation program.

Murray is a member of the citizens' food committee whose meatless-Tuesday-eggless- and -poultryless-Thursdays plan was wholeheartedly approved by Mr. Truman, launching the nation on the stiffest self-denial regimen in peacetime history.

The labor leader declared: "a voluntary food conservation program alone will not solve the problems caused by shortages, hunger and high prices. We must do more."

5,000,000 FEWER CATTLE SEEN BY CLOSE OF YEAR

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6—A five-million head reduction of beef cattle and calves on U. S. farms was predicted today by C. W. Hammans, Ohio State University farm marketing specialist.

Hammans said record slaughtering activities during early months of this year may cause figures for the end of 1947 to be five million below those at the beginning of the year.

The marketing expert said only a better ration between feed costs and meat prices can halt the reduction.

Cattle numbers decreased three million head in 1945, the previous record slaughtering year.

TYPHOON LASHES P. I.

New Comintern Calls On European Reds To Wage War On Yank Imperialism

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—The United States today accepted organization of a new Communist International as a final declaration of political and ideological warfare between East and West.

The state department viewed the immediate objective of the Comintern, revived in Moscow by the Communists of nine European countries, as an attempt to wreck the Marshall plan.

High officials were reticent in their public comment, but underlying their surface attitude was the conviction that the move meant a renewed Soviet effort to bring France and Italy into the Communist sphere and drive the U. S. out of Greece and Turkey.

Ranking state department officers made only a meagre attempt to conceal their hope that the Moscow development would prompt an early call of a special congressional session.

MOSCOW, Oct. 6—A new communist front by the Communist parties of nine European countries called on the world revolutionary movement today to lead a struggle against the "establishment of world domination by American imperialism."

The new comintern declared its aim will be to smash the Truman doctrine and the Marshall plan as constituent parts of "United States world expansion."

The communist chiefs also named as targets the countries,

JOHN C. GOELLER CELEBRATES HIS 80TH BIRTHDAY

Eightieth birthday was being celebrated Monday by John C. Goeller, life-long Circleville resident long identified with the manufacturing, the banking business and civic affairs. He is president of city council.

Mr. Goeller was born at 10 a. m. Oct. 6, 1867, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael G. Goeller, at 225 East Main street. It was Sunday and the church bells were ringing.

For 79 years Mr. Goeller has lived in the second ward, and he now lives with his wife, Mrs. Sadie L. Goeller, at 304 East Mound street. He is the father of nine children, four daughters and five sons.

Red Union Threat Seen By British

London Says Move Reveals Reason For Lack Of Powers' Cooperation

LONDON, Oct. 6—The British foreign office declared today it regards the formation of the comintern as the first official Soviet explanation of the present lack of cooperation between the former wartime Allies.

A considered statement issued through a spokesman said the British government takes a serious view of the Belgrade Communist union.

The spokesman said:

"It has made obvious now that which was obscure in the past. We now know the reason for the absence of cooperation between the great powers who won the war."

He added: "It also explains why France and Italy were the only powers outside the actual sphere of influence of the Soviet Union who were invited to attend the imperial conference on the new Russian empire."

"THE WHOLE development is under active study and the fact that several deputy prime ministers (of Soviet satellite states) signed the covenant is a matter of concern to his majesty's government."

British political observers expressed the view that the formation of the comintern means that Stalin is putting his outer fences in repair in case events compel him to quit the United Nations.

Semi-officially the new development was recognized as a major change in Soviet policy and a Russian declaration to the world that the allies wartime cooperation has ended.

It was believed that the Comintern announcement fore-

PLOT TO GAIN POWER LAID TO AUSTRIAN REDS

VIENNA, Oct. 6—Austrian communists were accused today of plotting against the government with the support of the Soviet occupation army.

Foreign Minister Karl Gruber charged that Austrian Reds plan to seize power by the same technique employed in Hungary to oust the regime of Ferenc Nagy.

His warning before a meeting of 50,000 members of his people's party was echoed by Ferdinand Graf, undersecretary in the interior ministry.

Gruber declared that Austrian Communists would be ineffective without outside support and added:

"It is of fundamental interest to Austria that her neighbor states, especially the Soviet Union, should not support Communist aggression in the internal politics of our state."

PRINCESS WILL VOW TO "OBEY" HER HUSBAND

LONDON, Oct. 6—Princess Elizabeth, heiress presumptive to Britain's throne, will vow to "obey" the man who will legally be her subject as well as her husband.

The Nov. 20 ceremony in Westminster abbey will abide by the old Church of England prayer book instead of a 1928 version which omits the word "obey."

ACTIVE PART IN DEVELOPMENT OF ENERGY URGED

Lilienthal Reveals Plans For Expansion "Big Even For This Country"

DETROIT, Oct. 6—Atomic Energy Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal today issued the commission's first invitation to private industry to begin taking an active part in atomic power development.

Lilienthal declared that without such participation and the accompanying break down of the government's monopoly America's hopes and needs in the atomic field would be "doomed to disappointment."

The invitation was part of a major statement of AEC policy contained in a speech by Lilienthal before the economic club of Detroit.

THE ATOMIC energy chief also:

1. Forcefully denied assertions abroad that the United States is withholding atomic power developments that would end the suffering in coal-short Europe.

2. Predicted that a demonstration atomic power plant, producing "a thousand kilowatts or so," would be developed within the next year or two—but warned that it will be only a demonstration unit and that practical atomic power plants probably are eight to ten years away.

MEAT COUNCIL WOULD RESTORE PRICE CEILINGS

NEW YORK, Oct. 6—The National Meat Industry Council recommended today that price ceilings be restored on live-stock, and that the government requisition cattle if growers refuse to sell at maximum legal prices.

After a series of week-end conferences, the executive board of the council went on record as opposed to two "meatless days" a week.

Council president Jack Kranis declared that two "meatless days" might lead to a larger rather than smaller consumption of meat.

Kranis said that many families were eating fish, poultry and vegetable dinners as a substitute for meat, and that they were actually eating meat on fewer than five days a week.

The establishment of a general observance of two "meatless days" a week, he said, would standardize five days of meat-eating, and for many families this would increase the amount of meat consumption.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

The White House is searching for the fellow who authored the war-time signs reading, "illumination is required to be extinguished" instead of, "put the lights out."

The administration has tried several ways of saying, "eat less," and it still comes out, "eat less." What they want is something like, "food is required not to be eaten."

Otherwise, there is grave danger that the origin of, "eat less," will be traced to the right Mr. T.

New York law school is in a peculiar position in the "save wheat" campaign. Its option has just been picked up by a spaghetti maker.

But with N. Y. law school endowed by spaghetti, I hear Harvard is out for a meat ball sponsor.

details a "large-scale program of expansion" of U. S. atomic facilities so sweeping that it represents "a major effort, even for this country."

LILIENTHAL pointed out that industry's position in the atomic energy program must be an advisory one for the present, but explained that he wanted private enterprise to be ready to take over as soon as feasible.

He declared:
"It ought to be said, rather bluntly, that unless American industry and American engineering skills become an active living part of the atomic energy commission's undertaking, the expectations and the need of this country in this field will be inevitably doomed to disappointment."

The policy statement called for industry's participation "from the very beginning" in the design and production of reactors for atomic power. It also painted a promising picture of private industrial possibilities in the manufacture of compounds containing radio-isotopes.

Lilienthal made it clear, however, that he saw no immediate prospect for the entrance of private industry in the actual production of fissionable material or in any field closely related to the atomic bomb. He also emphasized that secrecy requirements put definite limits on the amount of atomic information that can be given to industry.

CHINESE REDS PUSH CLOSER TO TWO KEY CITIES

PEIPING, Oct. 6 — Chinese communist troops drove closer today to Changchun and Mukden, the two biggest government-held cities in Manchuria.

Pressing their sixth general offensive of the civil war in the rich territory, the Red forces continued battering at three major railroads that radiate out of Mukden where headquarters of the northeast Nationalist armies are located.

Thirty five miles south of the Manchurian capital of Changchun, other communist troops swept past the government-evacuated railroad of Kungchuling. Their vanguards were reported engaging in skirmishes with the Nationalists only ten miles from the center of Changchun.

President Chiang Kai-Shek, presently in Peiping, was said to be devoting his utmost attention to the Manchurian battlefield developments.

ATTACK ON WIFE COSTS FARMER FINE OF $10

Emerson Sheets, 28, farmer, Route 1, Orient, was arrested at 2:30 a. m. Sunday by Sheriff's Deputies Vern L. Pontious and Carl Radcliff, on a warrant sworn to by Mr. Sheets' wife accusing him of assault.

After having spent 13 hours in the Pickaway county jail Mr. Sheets was released at 3:30 p. m. Sunday when he paid a fine of $10 and costs imposed by Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland who had fined him $25 but subsequently suspended $15 of that sum.

shadowed the intensification of Soviet antagonism towards the West and particularly the United States.

POLITICAL observers feel that the establishment of the comintern may have unexpected repercussions since no Communist party belonging to the Belgrade union can any longer claim treatment as an honest independent political party.

They asserted that they must be branded henceforth by what the Manchester guardian called agents of an "international conspiracy."

A spokesman for the British Communist party said the organization's executive committee will decide at a meeting next week whether to affiliate with the Comintern.

400 PRESENT AT ANNUAL LOGAN ELM PROGRAM

Relationship of the famous speech delivered by Chief Logan to present day world affairs was stressed by Dr. Harlan H. Hatcher, Ohio State University, principal speaker Sunday afternoon at the 35th annual celebration at Logan Elm—Ohio's oldest and most historic tree—in the Logan Elm State Park.

More than 400 persons attended the celebration in the park situated seven miles south of Circleville and a mile east of U. S. Route 23. The program was under auspices of the Ohio History Day Association.

Mrs. Howard Jones, Cincinnati, president emerita of the organization, and Prof. Edward D. Seeder, Indianapolis, Ind., who has made extensive research on the authenticity of Chief Logan's address, were among the guests. Lisa and Linda Given, Circleville, representing the Girl Scout organization, directed distribution of the programs.

p. m. yesterday after deliberations that began Friday afternoon.

The courtroom was jammed, the courtroom was packed and a crowd of 3,000 milled about outside for the climax to the longest criminal trial in American court history.

There was a roar of approval from the crowd as the court clerk, having been handed the verdicts by jury foreman J. A. Porter, read:

"We, the jury, find the defendant, George Rector Gollum, not guilty of the murder of Walter E. Overell."

Pandemonium broke loose when the second verdict, clearing the 21 year old youth of the murder of Mrs. Overell, was read.

Both the judge and the bailiff were ignored in their efforts to restore order.

Miss Overell sat tensely waiting to hear her fate. Her heart was pounding so hard that persons sitting near her said they could see it thumping through her coat.

SHE RELAXED and gave a sigh of relief when the verdicts acquitting her were read.

A poll of the six men and six women jurors brought out that the hearse and pre-medical student Gollum were never in danger of being found guilty.

The first ballot stood seven for acquittal, four for guilty and one not voting. By Saturday night, when it stood 11 to one, it was 11 for acquittal.

INDIAN SUMMER? IT COMES AFTER SQUAW WINTER

By International News Service
The sunny and warm Fall weather continued to hang on in Ohio today, but there were indications it would begin tapering off by tomorrow and be a little cooler Wednesday.

Weatherman C. G. Andrus said the mercury probably would hit into the middle 80's this afternoon under the influence of a cloudless sky and a southerly wind.

The weatherman said there is considerable discussion as to whether the present warm spell could be classified as Indian Summer.

"To me that's a moot question," Andrus declared. "The consensus of many people who have written me on the subject is that Indian Summer occurs in November rather than October. Personally, I'm inclined to place Indian Summer anytime after Oct. 15."

Andrus said that according to Indian lore, Indian Summer is preceded by "Squaw Winter," the occasion of the first snowfall of the season. The period after the snowfall, when it begins warming up again, is Indian Summer.

United States and Russia and thus between the two U. N. camps is the assembly deadlock on electing a successor to Poland on the 1948 security council.

THE WEEK-END was hectic among various delegations in their efforts to line up support for the expected plenary at Flushing Meadows this week to ballot for a decision between the Ukraine and India.

The first boomerang to the deepened quarrels in the assembly in the current session has been a move sponsored by Sweden in the budgetary committee calling for the 1948 session of the general assembly to be held in Geneva.

Russia and France supported the proposal, with probably sufficient indorsement in prospect from other delegations to propel a resolution to that effect into the general assembly.

Dollar shortages and the U. S. presidential election in 1948 are some of the factors influencing a move in favor of Geneva.

WESTERN JAUNT CONVINCES TAFT G. O. P. WILL WIN

Ohioan To Reveal Plans
On Candidacy At Capital Oct. 24

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R) Ohio is convinced today from his 12,000 mile western trip that the Republicans will win control of the White House in 1948.

And members of his barnstorming party, including some 35 correspondents, are just as certain that the senate leader has decided to announce as a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination.

Taft wound up his six-state tour over the weekend, returning to Cincinnati before swinging westward again to keep speaking engagements at Des Moines and Chicago Oct. 8 and 9. He said he would make his "decision" on the candidacy about Oct. 24 at Columbus, Ohio.

TAFT SAID that the "principal conclusion" formed from his tour is that the Republicans will carry the states he visited—California, Nevada, Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Wyoming—both for congress and for president. And he added:

"Whatever I may decide about becoming a candidate, there is no doubt in my mind that the Republicans will elect a president in 1948."

Taft reported that he was "particularly pleased" to find "general and enthusiastic approval" of the Taft-Hartley labor law which he co-sponsored.

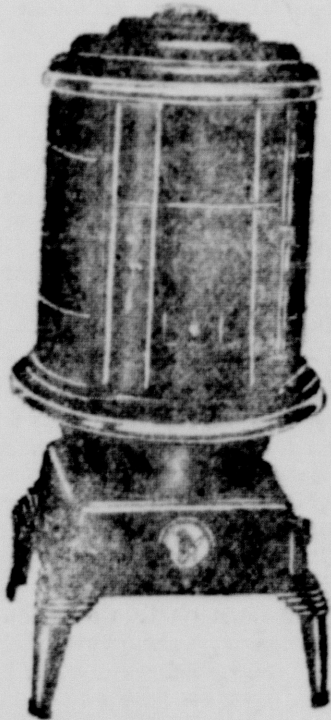

Six of his speeches in California and Washington were picketed by demonstrators protesting against the labor reform act and Taft's views on OPA and prices.

KNEECE FACING THREE CHARGES BEFORE MAYOR

Harold Kneece, 21, Columbus, who escaped from Circleville police but was recaptured after a brief chase, Monday was in jail awaiting a hearing before Mayor Ben H. Gordon on charges of intoxication, disorderly conduct, and resisting officers.

Kneece was nabbed at 11 p. m. Saturday when Patrolmen Turney Ross and John W. McGinnis said, he smashed a beer bottle on a sidewalk in front of a West Main street tavern. The officers said Kneece broke from them in a City building hallway, and he ran from the building with the officers in hot pursuit. He was seized a short distance away.

SIMPLE SEMANTICS

IN ANTICIPATION of the coming presidential elections, it is time for citizens to review the meanings of a word in constant use. That word is "politics". Reams have been written to clarify politics, but for the purpose of good citizenship, the simple definitions given by a good dictionary will suffice:

- "1. The science and art of government."
- "2. The theory or practice of managing affairs of public policy or of political parties; hence, political affairs, principles, or the like; in a bad sense, dishonest management to secure the success of political candidates or parties."

Gerry Robichaud of the Chicago Sun Washington bureau writes a story purporting to show President Truman's attitude as "above politics". This depends on the definition. Mr. Truman refused to take the advice of his more progressive advisers and lay the blame for the present food and price crisis on the "excesses of corporate wealth". He took the middle road, along with his more conservative advisers. In this case it is an attitude of objectivity and reliance on the generosity and common sense of the American people. That is not being "above politics" unless the definition is the dictionary's "politics in a bad sense".

Too often, these days, "politics" really means "dishonest politics." We are losing sight of the real and important meaning of the word. Any man elected to the office of President must exercise politics. He cannot be above the art and science of government. He can be and should be above dishonest politics. The electorate needs constantly to be on the lookout for confusion resulting from misuse of important words.

RETURN TO BALANCE

A DRIVE for lower taxes and an effort to produce stability between income and living costs, as well as the encouragement of better labor relations and increased production, are on the program for the coming year of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

"Particular attention will be given to what needs to be done to straighten out the distortions in the price structure to the end that what one man produces will enable him to buy what another produces," it is reported. The Chamber also favors mass production techniques as a solution for the housing shortage.

This program sounds practical and feasible. If the nation's business men, as represented by this organization, can accomplish these objectives or make a good start toward their goal the free enterprise system will be greatly strengthened.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

It is always beneficial to go back to history for an understanding of what is happening now. For instance, we find ourselves involved in the organization of a Western bloc of nations which we are asked to support to the tune between $19,000,000,000 and $22,000,000,000. We are also asked to eat less, at a time when Russia reports a bumper crop and the French peasant refuses to sell his wheat because he dislikes the money of his own government. Actually, we know little about all the maneuvers, except that we are constantly faced by crises.

The point I wish to make is that the American people know so little of what is done in their name—they are told so little—that they are committed to expenditures of wealth and life unnecessarily. And I should like to cite General George Marshall as my witness. Appearing before the Pearl Harbor Committee of Congress, he said:

"... Had they (the Japanese) not attacked on December 7, had they waited, for example, until January 1, there is a possibility that they would not have launched the attack, I do not know, because it appeared quite a definite possibility that Russia might get to her feet, which she did."

During subsequent examination Senator Brewster asked:

"You and Admiral Stark had both concurred in hoping that decision might be deferred for at least two or three months."

General Marshall replied: "That was our great desire."

A plan of action had been worked out at a conference in Singapore concerning which the American people knew nothing. In other words, prior to Pearl Harbor, prior to a Declaration of War, this country and Great Britain were acting jointly in the Far Eastern situation. Two messages from Churchill to Roosevelt confirm this:

"Your message about Japan received tonight. Also full accounts from Lord Halifax of discussions and your counter project to Japan on which Foreign Secretary has sent some comments. Of course, it is for you to handle this business and we certainly do not want an additional war. There is only one point that disquiets us. What about Chiang Kai-shek? Is he not having a very thin diet? Our anxiety is about China. If they collapse our joint dangers would enormously increase. We are sure that the regard of the United States for the Chinese cause will govern your action. We feel that the Japanese are most unsure of themselves."

In another message, he said: "... Forgive me, my dear friend, for presuming to press such a course upon you, but I am convinced that it might make all the difference and prevent a melancholy extension of the war."

Well, it seems that while the British assumed that negotiation were taking place to avoid a war, what we now know to be an ultimatum was handed to the Japanese. Secretary Stimson's diary says:

"On the morning of the 27th of November, 1941—the first thing in the morning when I called up Mr. Hull to find out what his final decision had been with the Japanese, whether he had handed them the new proposal—or whether, as he suggested yesterday, he had broken the whole matter off."

Home Penicillin Treatments Used for Sinus Sufferers

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

ALMOST from the moment when the wonders of penicillin were discovered, I have been asked repeatedly: "Doctor, why can't I use penicillin at home?"

Sufferers from sinus infection were particularly interested. Because they had heard of penicillin's amazing ability to cure pneumonia and other diseases of the respiratory tract, they wondered if they could not use it to root out the germs causing infection in the air passages connected with the nose.

Method Worked Out

Today I am happy to report that they can. For the first time—and after many trials—a method has been worked out whereby penicillin in adequate amounts can be put into the sinuses without the use of special apparatus. This means a great saving in time for both doctor and patient because the method is so simple that once the patient has learned it, he can use it at home as often as necessary, thus saving himself many trips to the doctor's office. This does not mean, however, that he can do without a doctor. In the first place, not all cases of sinus trouble can be treated successfully in this way. In the second, the doctor must decide the strength of the penicillin solution to be used and how often it is needed.

There's a Trick

And not only this. Even though the method of getting penicillin into the sinuses is simple, there's a trick to it. It is doubtful if the patient could manage it correctly unless first shown in detail by his doctor just what to do.

Usually a weak solution of penicillin in salt solution is recommended. The patient lies with his head bent back over the edge of the bed. Then the weak penicillin in salt solution is put into each nostril. From one to one and a half teaspoons of this solution is put in each nostril with an eye dropper. The nose is then firmly closed with the thumb and fingers, and the patient tries to draw in his breath from four to six times. The procedure is repeated three or four times a day.

Two to Four Days

It has been found that with this treatment, recent infection of the sinuses will disappear within two to four days.

This method of treatment is not used in the ordinary, every-day cold in the nose. The reason is that the average cold disappears by itself in about a week and no treatment is necessary. It is only when the sinuses become infected secondary, or following a cold, that this treatment of penicillin solution in the nose finds its greatest field of usefulness.

When the front group of sinuses are the seat of infection they can be more readily reached by the weak solution of penicillin in salt solution if the chin is turned toward the shoulder of the side of the affected sinus at the time the solution is instilled into the nostril. First the sinuses on one side are treated and then those on the other are treated if they, too, are infected. It would appear that this treatment is easily carried out much quicker and much more effectively than most in clearing up stubborn sinus infection, and well worth a trial in many cases.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Wife: My husband has diabetes and is very thin. He insists on drinking beer and liquor all the time. What must I do about this?

Answer: It is inadvisable for your husband to use alcoholic beverages if he has diabetes. I suggest that you discuss this matter with his physician and request that the danger of this practice be explained to your husband.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

NORAH MANAGED the pallid semblance of a grin and continued huskily, "I know I sounded confused and bewildered. I went up to see Bill soon after he'd been transferred to the hospital in August—" She broke off and shivered with the dreadful memory and her hands locked tightly together. "He was—strange. He was unable to speak, and his eyes, as they looked at me, were blank."

Gall's arms were about her, holding her close and hard, soothing her with all the tenderness and love that filled her heart for this girl who was carrying her tragic burden in such self-sacrificing silence.

"Norah, don't you think you should tell Father and Kate?" she asked uneasily when Norah's tears had subsided a little.

Norah caught her breath and flung up her head. "Oh, no, Gall—I couldn't! It would break their hearts!" she said swiftly. "Because it is MY grief, it would hurt them much more than if it had happened directly to them. You see, they don't know Bill very well; they would have been terribly upset if they had known that I was going to marry him. Kate had been very ill with pneumonia, and Uncle Charles was frantic with worry about her. So you see, when Bill knew that he'd be going overseas in just a short while, we had to be married then or give it up until he came back. That was what he thought we should do, because of what could so easily happen to him."

She drew a long hard breath and said faintly, "He said, 'Suppose there should be a child and I should come back crippled or blind?' You see, neither of us ever for a single instant thought of his mind. The most awful thing of all."

She mopped her eyes and straightened and went on quietly: "Bill is—was very brilliant, with a fine mind," she said then. "He worked his way through college and was graduated with honors. He wanted to be a doctor, and he had been offered an internship at the City Hospital in Atlanta. He could have been deferred from the draft if he had wanted to, until he finished his internship, and then he could have gone in with a commission in the Medical Corps. But he was too angry, after Pearl Harbor, to wait. He wanted to go in slugging, he said. Well, he did, poor darling—" Her voice broke again and for a moment she clung to Gall, then she pulled away, smiling tremulously.

"And that's that," she said, her voice determinedly lighter. "It's been sweet of you to let me howl on your shoulder, Gall, but it's not fair for me to shove my worries on somebody else."

"What are friends for, if not to share woes?" said Gall reasonably. Norah hesitated a moment and then she demanded quietly, "Then why don't you share yours with me, Gall? Maybe I could help."

Gall's color deepened and for a moment she stiffened. "I don't know what you mean." "Okay, skip it," said Norah almost brusquely. "I only thought that if it helped me to tell you something of my troubles, it might help you if you told me why you and Greg are determined to hurt each other, just because you are so terribly in love."

"I'm not in love—" Gall's voice died beneath the look in Norah's eyes, and Norah turned away, lifting her shoulders in a little shrug. "Sorry I mentioned it," she said coolly. "Of course, it's your own affair, and you'll have to work it out your own way."

She slid into bed, drew the covers up and finished lightly, "Blow out the lamp when you're ready." Gall did, but she did not get into bed. She crossed to the window and stood looking out into the soft summer night. It was late September. The nights were touched with a faint promise of coolness that the days belied; the moon was a slim new crescent, scarcely three nights old and already low in the sky.

From the fields and the woods there came the soft murmur of night sounds to which the country dweller becomes so accustomed that he notices them only when they cease to exist. There was a steady chirping of crickets, as though they realized that their time was limited and they were in a sudden hurry to have done with all their summer business. Somewhere far across the hill a hound dog bayed mournfully, and closer at hand an eager, staccato bark of a feist answered it. For a moment, Gall remembered the city: the bedroom window that opened on a narrow alley, across that the back of an apartment house; the sounds of the city, its clamor and discord, the air that was thick and heavy these nights with carbon monoxide, coal dust and the inevitable grime of city streets; neighbors' radios shrieking; a child crying somewhere; people talking, taxis, a trolley car with a flat wheel.

Gall knew suddenly that she never wanted to go back to the city again, knew it with a touch of panic. Once more the feeling gripped her that this was home—Twin Oaks was her home. For the first time, being independent, holding a job, standing on her own two feet and facing the world, did not seem such a proud thing. Instead, there was a desperate loneliness about it. A loneliness that shook her badly.

Just beyond that grove of trees that stood so dark and mysterious in the thin starlight and the light of the small young moon, was a little cabin that shined all her dreams; and its door was locked to her forever. Lissa's letter had locked the door; there was no key to that door save Greg's complete understanding, and Greg didn't want to understand. His mind had been closed against her even before he first set eyes on her. Even though he had fallen in love with her, it had been purely an emotional reaction to whatever looks and charm and personality she might have. And once he had seen that letter of Lissa's, he had been quick to down the emotion, to reassert his suspicion and his contempt. She shivered a little as though the mild night had suddenly turned chill, and crept into bed beside Norah to lie wide-eyed and sleepless while what was left of the night crept past.

Somewhere near dawn Gall fell asleep and Norah slipped out of bed without disturbing her. When Gall awoke she was alone, and the cheerful morning sounds to which she had grown so happily accustomed during the never-to-be-remembered summer came in to her. The air was dewy fresh with the morning that promised heat later in the day.

Her heart lifted with delight in the first moment of awakening. She was back at Twin Oaks. She could have a lovely day and another night, and then she must go back to town to her job. But she wouldn't let herself think of that now. She would savor each moment of this day, hold it close to her heart, build it of memories that would solace in some small measure the terrifying loneliness that lay ahead.

Norah had laid out a freshly laundered pair of blue jeans, a shirt, a pair of low-heeled, scuffed oxfords and socks. Gall laughed as she donned them, picturing Lissa's face when she saw them. Lissa had never been willing for Gall to wear blue jeans, even when they became fashionable among Gall's wealthy friends.

"Glamor's our job, Gall," Lissa had said with unexpected seriousness. "Pedal-pushers, shorts, well-cut slacks—we can safely risk those. But blue jeans—never!" All that seemed so long ago and so unimportant!

She brushed her hair back from her face, tied a ribbon about it, and without so much as a dust of powder on her straight, sun-tanned nose, she went eagerly down the stairs.

The others were at breakfast when she came in, and Gall almost gasped at the sight of Lissa at the table at this hour in the morning, already smoothly groomed and tailored, obviously on the verge of departure.

"There you are, you had girl!" said Lissa, and took the blue jeans, the faded shirt, the scuffed oxfords in her stride. "You should be spanked for scaring the daylight out of all of us. It's your good fortune, my child, that we love you too much."

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

NEW YORK—There are a lot of nice things about the veddy social restaurant, Coq Rouge—zabalone and meringue Chantilly for the stomach, Dick Wilson's dance music for the feet and a 50-foot mural of Manhattan for the eyes and the soul—but I am afraid Coq Rouge will linger in my memory forever as the place where I broke one of my favorite pipes, a clay that was reaching the nice brown color that would allow me to pass it off as meerschaum.

That is an odd thing about restaurants, night clubs, cafes—the way you remember them. Long-champs, for example, should stick in my subconscious as the string of restaurants owned by Henry Lustig, who was sentenced to the jug for income tax trouble—but I recall Longchamps merely as a joint where a friend of mine tried to steal a red apple from a pile of 144 in the window, and spilled the whole gross of apples all over the floor.

Versailles has a good floor show and excellent decor; all I can think of, when you mention the name, is young Bill Carey, son of Madison Square Garden's onetime president, saying to the bartender for gosh sake, Joe, you have to make sure the drop of lemon juice passes through the flame of the lighted match, to make a REAL French 75.

If someone says Jimmy Ryan's, all I can think of is sitting at a corner table with Bandleader Wilbur de Paris and learning gin rummy, which I have read to this day. Talk of El Morocco, and all I can think of is Lucius Beebe. Bring up Twenty-One, and I can only remember the light shining on Mrs. Harrison Williams' blue-gray hair.

BILL'S GAY NINETIES: Sitting with Nick Wreden, the E. P. Dutton vice president, and his secretary, Pat Bishop, and thinking what a remarkable couple they were. (They were married six months later.) Nicky Blair's Carnival: Losing my way to the men's room.

Dinty Moore's: I first saw George Jean Nathan there. The Barbary Room: Little Cathy O'Donnell, looking as if she should be in second year of parochial high school, saying she was going to Hollywood and was scared stiff. (Remember her in "The Best Years of Our Lives"?)

The Copacabana: Meeting the blond friend of a press agent and being amazed when she surreptitiously dropped a card with her address on it, in my pocket. The Persian Room of the Plaza: Champagne.

The Gotham: Director Rouben Mamoulian telling me of the Art of the movies, and wondering all the while if he was kidding. Joe King's G. A. club on Third Avenue: A Yale boy, full of beer, trying to dig a hole in the dance floor with an air-raid shovel. Luchow's: Rye bread.

The Stork: Rex Harrison refusing to be inveigled into a candid opinion of American movies. The Blue Angel: Evelyn Knight, lying on the sofa in her upstairs dressing room, saying her feet hurt. Mike Lyman's, in Hollywood: Evening, and someone playing "Melancholy Baby" on the piano, and thinking this would be a nice place to live forever. The Palladium, also in Hollywood: A bartender refusing to believe Helen Walker's insistence she was over 21.

LA RUE: Greta Garbo hiding her face from a cameraman (six other places leave that impression, too). The Savoy-Plaza: Watching Irving Conn's orchestra play and remembering the days when the world was young and Irving played up at Ben Riley's Arrow, head inn.

The Wedgewood Room of the Waldorf: Margaret Truman sitting at the table next to me, and using the right fork. Billy Reed's Little Club: Red stripes. The Manhattan Room of the Pennsylvania: Talking with Gene Krupa after he first formed his own band, and telling him ungraciously that I didn't like it.

The men's bar at the Biltmore: Brown October ale. Tim Costello's bar on Third Avenue: The time I came across one of my cousins there, dead drunk.

Monte Carlo: Movies in the back room. The Three Deuces: 3 a.m., with Miss North America of nineteen-something-or-other having her handwriting read (I think she's a cashier in a hotel, now). The Downbeat: Billie Holiday, a gardenia in her hair, spivys: Entering the elevator, in the business building, and feeling as if I were going to visit my dentist. La Martinique: Thinking, this is a nice little shop—but what am I doing wasting my time in a gin mill, anyway?

Dr. E. L. Marting To Discuss Cancer

Meeting Open To Public In Parish House

Dr. Ester Fabrian Marting, Cincinnati, has been invited by members of Women's Auxiliary to the Pickaway County Medical Society to present an address in the Parish house of St. Philip's church, Wednesday at 8 p. m.

Dr. Marting will discuss cancer and its various phases, along with diagnosis and the treatment. She is an outstanding authority on cancer and has studied the Marie Curie hospital, London, and Curie Institute, Paris. In the United States she was associated with the Howard A. Kelly hospital, Baltimore, Maryland, Memorial Hospital, New York City, Michael Reese hospital, Chicago, Illinois, and spent two years as resident in the Pathology department of General hospital, Cincinnati.

She was assistant director of the tumor service of the General hospital, Cincinnati for two years. Dr. Marting then served as director for a five year period of the same department in the Cincinnati hospital. She now is in private practice in Cincinnati after completing two and a half years as assistant director of the Chicago Tumor Institute.

Invitations are extended to the public to attend the lecture along with the members of the Business and Professional Women's club, Child Conservation League, Child Study Club and the Civic Club of Ashville.

Sure We Save
USED FAT
20th Century!

Even in the limited space of a train galley, it's a New York Central rule that used fats be saved. Why? Because, folks, our government says every pound of used fats should be saved to help relieve a world shortage that is still critical. Last July, for example, our dining cars and commissaries turned in almost five thousand pounds. And we're keeping at it. So if you're not saving fats as regularly as you used to, won't you get back in the habit? Every drop is still needed!

THESE DAYS

By George E. Sokolsky

as he put it, 'I have washed my hands of it and it is now in the hands of you and Knox, the Army and the Navy.'

General Marshall further testified.
"My recollection is, and I have a fairly clear recollection of our disappointment, that from the military point of view, meaning Army and Navy, that we would not gain any more time; our relationship to these discussions was on the one side the desire to gain as much time as we possibly could and on the other to see that commitments were not made that endangered us from a military point of view."

There is more and more of this and history will record these events very differently from what the American people were told at the time. Much occurred that even high officers of state, Stimson, Welles, Marshall did not know, to say nothing of Congress or the American people. It ought not to be like that. We need to know.

Opinions expressed by the writer in the column are the views of the author and not necessarily those of the Circleville Herald.

BUCKEYES FACE SOUTHERN CAL AS 'UNDERDOGS'

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6—Ohio State turned sadly toward its next foe today, faced by the knowledge that it will be an underdog for the first time this year.

The Bucks were favored against both Missouri and Purdue, but they definitely will be on the short end of the odds against Southern California at Ohio Stadium Saturday.

There was little consolation for the Bucks after their 24-to-20 upset by Purdue. They were beaten by a team that outgained, out-fought and outlasted them.

In short, the Bucks were beaten by a better ball club. If Dean Sensenbaur hadn't flashed his oldtime ball-toting form in touchdown runs of 98 and 63 yards, the verdict might not even have been close.

Purdue was keyed to a high pitch by Coach Stu Holcomb, an Ohio State alumnus and Coach at Findlay, Miami and Muskingum Colleges in the Buckeye State. The Boilmakers made 17 first downs to ten for Ohio. They gained 346 yards by rushing and 58 on passes, while the Bucks traveled 240 yards on the ground and added 48 via the airfares.

Unfortunately, the Bucks face the additional sad fact that Sensenbaur may not be available Saturday against the Trojans. The chunky halfback, who runs with an elusiveness belying his 195 pounds, sprained his ankle in the fourth quarter.

Ohio's defection was principally in the line. The Buck forwards, even with the aid of Fesler's trick 5-4-2 defense, couldn't halt the Boilmaker thrusts.

The same defense that Fesler used with great success at Pittsburgh a year ago, where the Panthers were well nigh invulnerable on the ground, has been ripped apart by both Missouri and Purdue.

ASHVILLE

Miss Wilma Lou Borror, Ohio Northern University, Ada, Ohio, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Borror.

Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Cromley have returned from Purdue University where Dr. Cromley took a short course in veterinary practices.

The Rev. Albert Schiff, Columbus, visited Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Schiff.

Miss Mary Swoyer is now employed by the State Department of Taxation, Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Court-right and Susan, Marion, spent Saturday and Sunday in Ashville on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Rathburn have purchased the former M. P. Devors dwelling, 2297 A street, and plan to move there soon.

Mrs. Everette Drake, who has been quite ill for the last ten days, is now able to be out of doors again.

Mrs. Paul Cromley received several cuts and bruises Saturday in a fall from a step ladder.

CLEVELAND BROWNS TOP YANKEES TO KEEP LEAD

By International News Service
The Cleveland Browns looked more unbeatable than ever in the All-America Conference today following their 26-to-17 whipping of the New York Yankees yesterday.

The Browns are the only unbeaten team in the junior pro circuit, and they now have defeated both co-leaders of the league's eastern division.

The second largest pro crowd in history, 80,067, saw the Brown spot New York a field goal in the first period then comeback to win. Lou Groza booted two field goals, the second a 43-yarder.

ASHVILLE LOSES CO PENNANT TO REYNOLDSBURG

In a well played ball game at Columbus State Hospital Grounds, Ashville was defeated by Reynoldsburg to lose the mythical championship of Central Ohio.

Ashville seemed well on the road to victory when they entered the last half of the ninth inning leading 2-1. Gerlach fanned and Streng was called safe at first on a close play. But J. Woods then hit a slow curve over the centerfield fence for a home run scoring Streng ahead of him to win the ball game.

The Reds scored all of their runs in the second inning, but the Reynoldsburg team came back in their half of the second to score one run. The ball game then settled down to a pitchers duel until the ninth inning.

Next Sunday, Ashville will play an all-star team from the South Central Ohio League. The Reds are planning on next year now and probably some new faces will be seen in the lineup. This will be the last game for Ashville this year.

RACE HORSE KILLED

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6—Darby Depths, a runaway Beulah Park thoroughbred owned by R. C. Wooten of Millville, was killed by an automobile on route three yesterday. The animal had broken loose from his stall.

SWAP NETS 2 FOR 1
YOU'D SWAP one trick for two any old time, wouldn't you? That's the principle that can in rare circumstances cause you to lead away from a guarded honor, or even that honor itself, though you can see that so doing will definitely doom a trick it otherwise would take. Such a situation can exist when your lead hammers a re-entry out of the declarer's hand or the dummy prematurely, or when it reduces by two the number of tricks the declarer can score by ruffing with the dummy's trumps.

That must have been the correct bidding as it went exactly that way at all three tables of a little individual duplicate game. The early play must have been correct too, since in every case the diamond 3 was led to the K, then the two minor suit aces were cashed. At two of the tables, East then laid down the heart A, which South ruffed with the spade 2, the club K was scored, club 7 ruffed by the spade 3, the heart 4 by the spade 5, the club 10 by the spade A, the heart 5 by the spade 6 and the spade Q led to the K. Now South had only spades left, so made his contract. At the third table, East made a different move after the first three tricks in the minors. He decided after the club A lead to the third trick that South could well have four clubs and wish to ruff two of them; that if South had any heart at all the defense could not be deprived of its trick with the A. So there could be little chance of loss by sacrificing the certain trick available with the spade K. He therefore led the spade 10, which South won with the J. Now the only way South could ruff a single club trick would be with the A. That would set up East's K for a trick and also leave South a losing club, setting the contract. It worked out just as East foresaw. Would you have foreseen that play, and made it?

ing it so violently the contents dribbled over the sides, splashed on his coat sleeve. The rest of the conversation is blushing omitted. The bartender leaned over and gently chided the scotch and soda. "watch it, mister," he said. "There's a lady present." The beer drinker mopped his mouth with the back of his hand and turned back to watch the world series on the television screen. "They get kinda excited sometimes," the bartender apologized, "you shoulda been here yesterday. A Dodger fan and—"

The crowd at the stadium roared and the scotch and beers started local discussions. The world series is one of the biggest things that's happened to boost the standing of television. Whether the series was to be screened at all was pretty much touch and go, though, practically up to the time the umpire stepped up to the plate and whisked it clean. The baseball bigwigs were afraid that if the right for televising the series was granted, it might cut a swatch in box-office receipts. Commissioner Chandler finally set the price at $100,000, which a brewery firm volunteered to pay. But Chandler
